An old man lived in a village. He was the most unfortunate person in the world. The whole village was tired of him; he was always gloomy, he constantly complained and was always in a bad mood.

The longer he lived, the more bile he was becoming and more poisonous were his words. People avoided him, because his misfortune became contagious. It was even unnatural and insulting to be happy next to him. He created the feeling of unhappiness in others.

But one day, when he turned eighty years old, an incredible thing happened. Instantly everyone started hearing the rumour; "the old man is happy today, he doesn't complain about anything, smiles and even his face is freshened up." The whole village gathered together and the old man was asked, what happened to you?

"Nothing especial, Eighty years I have been chasing happiness, and it was useless. And then I decided to live without happiness, and just enjoy life. That's why I am happy now."

(11). Read the description on “Veddah People in Sri Lanka” and answer the questions.

Veddah People in Sri Lanka

The Veddah people in Sri Lanka or “Wanniale Aththo” as they call themselves are the aborigines who have been living in small groups in the northern part of the country. They usually inhabit in thick jungles away from human settlements for centuries, they have been confined to an isolated community having an identity of their own. Research has revealed that Veddah people cannot be taken as nomads as they have always preferred a settled life looking after their needs by themselves in a very simple manner.

It is quite evident that they are highly motivated by nature so that they used to refuse the urban development and modern type of living. Instead, they intend to continue with their hunting type of life style armed with some particular equipment that are designed by themselves.

Veddah people in Sri Lanka normally pose with their half - naked body dressed in a piece of cloth like a lion cloth in ancient times, however ,they used to wear branches of trees .The male Veddahs often appear with the bow and arrow and axe hanging on their shoulder. They have long hair and thickly grown beard so that they always appear as “real jungle men” They used to stand as hunters who mainly depended on small animals which they hunted down with their bow and arrows and they always prove that they were talented marksman. Apart from venison, they used to grow dry grain mainly kurakkan or millet and vegetables. They were also experts in collecting bee-honey.

They have promoted their own culture patterns for centuries. They usually worship the nature forces extending their faith towards the sun, fire, huge rock etc. They possess their own language for songs ,dances and lullabies .Originally ,they used to find caves and rock shelters as their abode but now small green houses are built making use of the materials that could be easily found within their own environment. The male Veddahs vacate the homes during most part of the day while females remain at home with their kids. Women, of course cover their body mainly with cloth and a jacket.
