Whales

Whales are the largest animals that have ever lived on earth and are the largest animals that live in the ocean. They are even bigger than the largest dinosaur and it is believed that millions of years ago, whales probably walked upon land. Their back legs disappeared over time and their front legs became flippers. Blue whales can weigh over 150 tons and be over 100 feet in length.

Humpback Whales are also big, weighing up to 45 tons. Flippers of the humpback whale can be as long as 15 feet.

Since whales are not fish, they do not have gills so they cannot breathe underwater, although they can hold their breath for a really long time. For example, a sperm whale can hold its breath for 90 minutes, while the record is held by a Cuvier's beaked whale that can hold its breath for 220 minutes!

A baby whale is called a "calf", a female whale is called a "cow", and a male whale is called a "bull" Whales live a long time. A humpback whale can live for 45 years while a blue whale can live as long as 90 years. They can have babies every two to four years.

Bob The Bookworm

Bob spends most of his day reading books. These books could be of any kind, ranging from fiction novels to books about nature. But his favourite books are mystery novels such as Nancy Drew, A to Z and The Famous Five.

Bob's friends call him a bookworm and tease him about his habit. He is often laughed at because instead of playing video games he spends his free time reading books. While his friends tease him, his parents and teachers are proud of him. They think that reading improves a person's vocabulary and expression.

One day Bob was reading a book about Dinosaurs which really interested him. He read about the T-Rex, Raptors, Dracorex, Troodon and many more. The next week, in a "Just a Minute" competition Bob had to pick up a chit and speak about that topic for a minute. This competition was amongst various schools in his town. To his surprise, his topic was 'T-Rex'. This made Bob very excited because he knew a lot about dinosaurs.

Bob spoke very well and focused on the details.

Even though he did well, he was not expecting to win. As the results were being announced, Bob became very nervous. But he got excited when his name was announced for first place. Bob didn't only make his parents proud, but his entire school.

This was the first "Just a Minute" competition the school had ever won. Soon everybody wanted to become Bob's friend. No one laughed or teased him anymore. Bob was happy that his hobby got him success

Test 15

The first underground train

Today there are underground train systems in over 40 countries. For example, you can take underground trains in Paris, New York and Tokyo. Modern underground systems use electric trains, and they are clean, safe and quiet. They usually arrive on time. There are no traffic jams. Most people are happy to use them. But the first underground train systems were quite different from the modern systems we see in big cities all around the world.

The first underground trains ran in London in 1863. It was a very busy city and the streets were full of traffic. There were too many people, horse carriages, houses and buildings. There just wasn't enough space above ground, and so people decided to put the trains underground. But unlike today, there were no electric trains in 1863 and all of the trains used steam engines-which made power from fire and water.

In 1863, all of the trains used steam engines. Because these engines were powered by very hot water and fire, the tunnels were smoky, steamy and noisy. People wanted some fresh air, but it was difficult to get it into the tunnels and stations. The tunnels were dark, too. The train cars and stations were made of wood, and lighted with gas. Sometimes there were accidents because of fires.

Before the London Underground opened, people were very scared about the idea of going into underground tunnels. Many were afraid of the tunnels full of the smoke, the steam and the noise from the train engines. And indeed, travelling in the tunnels of the first underground system was a very noisy, dark, and smelly experience. But on the first day, the new London Underground carried 40,000 passengers. It was very quick, and the trains ran every 10 minutes. The people of London fell in love with their new train system.

The London Underground had three classes of travel. First class was the most expensive and most comfortable. Second class was less expensive but still comfortable. Third class was the opposite of first class. When the London Underground opened, the third class tickets were the most popular. About 70% of the tickets sold were these cheap tickets for ordinary working people. Nowadays the prices have gone up, but the underground experience around the world is definitely cleaner and quieter!

1. How many countries are there in the world that use underground train system?.....

What are the two advantages of having underground trains?
