Test - 7 Read the passage and answer the questions.

It was a cool and windy day. Willie, Jim, Laura and I were on our way to East Coast Park to fly a kite. On our way there, Jim felt something stuck to his shoe.

"Must be a piece of chewing gum or something," he muttered as he bent down to remove the object. What he removed from his shoe was a dirty fifty dollar note !

"Wow! What good luck! Let's go and celebrate with this money," said Willie. "I happen to know a good restaurant where we can go for a nice meal."

"All you can think of is food, Willie. No wonder you need to go on a diet," I said. "I think we should invest the money in a few good books."

"You boys can only think of yourselves," Laura chipped in. "I imagine that the owner of this fifty dollar note must be anxiously searching for it all over the place. So I suggest we look around to see if we can find the owner."

For the next few minutes, the three of us agreed about what we should do with the money.

"Er, there's something you guys ought to know," Jim interrupted suddenly.

We all turned to him. In the heat of our argument, we had forgotten all about him. "What is it, Jim?" Laura asked impatiently. Jim was the most quiet member of our group.

"Well, while all of you were busy arguing, a big gust of wind blew the money out of my hand," Jim said.

The Biggest Forces of Nature and the Damage They Cause.

Nature can be powerful and deadly causing mass destruction and loss of life. Some of the worst storms on record to date are hurricanes, tornadoes, and tsunamis.

One of the worst hurricanes in US history was category 5 Hurricane Katrina that touched down on US soil on August 29, 2005. Hurricane Katrina caused mass destruction as a distance measuring over 100 miles beyond the center of the storm. Areas hit included Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. It killed more than 1,800 people with another 705 still missing and caused estimated damages of $75 billion. 1.3 million acres of forest lands were completely destroyed costing the forestry industry $5 billion. Loss of 1 million non - farming jobs contributed to a total economic loss that may exceed $150 billion for both Louisiana and Mississippi together.

One of the worst tornadoes in US history was the tri-state tornado that began on March 18, 1925 in Ellington, Missouri. The tornado lasted 3.5 long hours and caused mass devastation to a number of mining towns on a 2019 - mile path spanning three states, Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana, 13 countries, and more than 19 different communities. The tri-state tornado was rated an F-5 on the Fujita Scale and completely destroyed 15,000 homes. The confirmed death toll was 695 people with another 2,027 injured. Nine schools across the three states were destroyed and total damages equaled $16.5 million.

The most destructive tsunami in history occurred on December 26, 2004, which was caused by an earthquake that registered a 9.0 magnitude. The earthquake had an estimated release of energy equaling the blast of 23,000 Hiroshima-type atomic bombs. Tsunami killer waves 50 feet in height raced faster than a jet plane across the Indian Ocean killing approximately 150,000 people and leaving millions more without a home across 11 different countries.
