TEST 9

Read the following text and answer the questions given below.

The calendar is a way of measuring time. It divides time into days, weeks, months and years. Most calendars are based on the length of time it takes the Earth to go round or orbit, the Sun. The oldest calendar known was an Egyptian invention.

Some scientists think it was devised as early as 4241 B.C. This calendar divided the year into 365 days. The calendar most often used today is Gregorian calendar, invented by pope Gregory in 1582. Chinese, Islamic, Hindu and Jewish calendars are also used in different parts of the world.
